AUGUST-DECEMBER 2016

ASHLEY TRIM

The James Irvine Foundation has awarded the Davenport Institute a $300,000 grant to expand their capacity to train public sector leaders and community members to engage effectively with one another on key public policy issues. This grant will allow the Davenport Institute and executive director Ashley Trim to continue to lead training seminars and provide technical assistance to encourage inclusive public decision-making at the local level, while also developing new training offerings for public safety and community members.

LUISA BLANCO and JAMES PRIEGER

The School of Public Policy received a $145,000 grant from the Charles Koch Foundation to support graduate research fellowships and training in public policy research. Program directors Dr. Luisa Blanco and Dr. James Prieger will conduct applied policy research with a select group of students through designed policy curriculum. Students will benefit from the teachings of scholars-in-residence. The program will provide an opportunity for students to present at SPP's policy research seminar leading up to a conference in Washington, D.C. where students will present their results.
