      - vi. Program Proposal: Computer Science online courses are taught by Stan Warford. The main reason for this proposal is because it is difficult for students who study abroad and are majoring in Computer Science, because they fall behind on the major's curriculum. These online courses will help allow students to study abroad and feel like they are keeping up with their major studies. Lectures are pre-recorded of courses taught on campus in Malibu and students take this course on the same timeline as students are taking it in Malibu. Stan has students that are interested in taking this course during the fall in Heidelberg, which is why it is being discussed now. It was proposed that the online course be assessed and compared to taking the course on-campus in Malibu. COM 313 is the only online course that has been officially approved at Seaver. Question was raised as to whether online recordings are a part of teaching pedagogy. Approved.
    2. Involuntary Military Service Proposal
